SUNANDAJI

Daughter-disciple of
Swami Parthasarathy

22 to 25 SEPTEMBER 2009

6:30 - 8:00 PM

Ravindra Natya Mandir
Prabhadevi, Mumbai

Sunandaji is the daughter disciple of the internationally eminent philosopher Swami Parthasarathy. Under his guidance, Sunandaji has been imbibing Vedanta, the ancient philosophy of India for over three decades.

Dedicating her life to the propagation of Vedanta philosophy, Sunandaji has addressed diverse audiences across four continents for the past twenty years. Her clear and powerful presentation of ancient wisdom in contemporary thought has been acclaimed by prestigious organisations including the Young Presidents Organisation and many leading universities around the world.

Sunandaji is a senior administrator and trustee of the Vedanta Cultural Foundation, a charitable trust dedicated to the study, research and propagation of Vedanta. The Foundation has been accorded the coveted status of a Scientific and Industrial Research Organisation by the Government of India. The Foundation also established the Vedanta Academy in Malavli Hills, 108 km from Mumbai. The Academy is a unique educational institution that imparts the knowledge of Vedanta to young men and women from all over the world.
